NOTICE: The present United States standards for potatoes which were to have been superceded by revised standards on October 10, 1941, will remain in effect until June 1, 1942, the United States Department of Agriculture announced today. During the last two weeks futures trading in potatoes has been unusually active. Under the commodity exchange act trading in the futures market in old grade potatoes futures contracts must be confined to liquidation on and after the effectiveness of the new standards. Placing the new standards in effect at this time department officials believe might result in market congestion and attendant price disturbance in the futures market.

2/ Fall and winter crop States supply earliest new-crop movement, starting in fall

It is indicated that there will be 11,800 acres of fall and winter potatoes in Florida and Texas this season. This is a decrease of 11% from the 13,300 acres of last season but is 9% above the 1931-40 average of 10,860 acres. The early acreage in the Everglades and at Ft. Myers, Florida, is in excellent condition. Harvest will start in the former area about December 10. The fall crop in the Texas Lower Valley was planted under unfavorable conditions, but made good progress in November. A light harvest is expected to start around December 10, but supplies will not be sufficient for carlot movement of any importance in December.
